The Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1962 ACT NO. 59 OF 1962

1324.

The War Injuries Ordinance, 1941 was promulgated during the last war in order to provide for grant of relief in respect of certain personal injuries sustained in the course of hostilities during that period. Although the Ordinance still continues to remain in force its provisions cannot be invoked for the purpose of granting relief in respect of personal injuries sustained or that may be sustained during the period of the present emergency. This has necessitated separate legislation.² The Bill seeks to empower the Central Government to formulate any scheme for grant of relief in respect of-(a) personal injuries sustained by gainfully occupied persons and by persons of such other classes as may be specified: and(b) personal service injuries sustained by civil defence volunteers. Persons suffering a personal injury or a personal service injury will not be entitled to any relief under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 or the Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948. The interests of workers covered by these two enactments will be protected either by amending the War In (Compensation Insurance) Act, 1943 or undertaking separate legislation on the lines of this Act, which provides for payment of compensation to the injured person roughly equal to the difference between the amount paid under the War Injuries Scheme and the amount payable under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923. Provision has also been made in the Bill for powers to call for information regarding the earnings and financial circumstances of injured persons, for medical attention of injured persons in dispensaries and hospitals, and for penalties for making false statements or claims.-Gazette of India, 3-12-1962, Pt. II, Section 2. Ext., p. 1212. Amending Act 74 of 1971 :- The Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1962 was enacted during the last emergency in order to provide for grant of relief in respect of certain personal injuries (i.e. war injuries) sustained in the course of hostilities during the period of that emergency. The Bill seeks to extend the Act to the present period of emergency.² The Bill seeks to empower the Central Government to formulate different schemes for grant of relief in respect of -(a) Personal injuries sustained during the present emergency by gainfully occupied persons and by persons of such other classes as may be specified, and (b) Personal service injuries sustained during the present emergency by Civil Defence Volunteers. Provision has also been made in the Bill to ensure that the claims allowed during the last emergency are not affected by the amendments to the Act.- Gazette of India, 15-12-1971, Pt. II, Section 2, Ext., p. 1121. [19th December, 1962] An Act to make provision for the grant of relief in respect of certain personal injuries sustained during the period of the emergency.
