The Andhra Pradesh Value Added Tax Act, 2005(Act No. 5 of 2005)Last Updated 14th November, 2019Critical Summary of VAT Act, 2005As and from 1st April, 2005 a new tax system called Value Added Tax will come into force throughout India. It will replace totally the existing sales tax system whereunder tax was levied and collected at every stage of sale or purchase of goods or at specified points. There were different rates as many as 16 for different commodities. In addition several goods, transactions, individuals and classes of persons were exempted from the levy and collection of tax. There were tax holidays, loans and deferments of tax. In the course of time it has become too cumbersome. Evasion and avoidance of tax have become common. Enforcement has become arbitrary. A new system of tax called value added tax is designed to cure many of the problems above stated.What is VAT?In this context the Government of India thought it advisable to replace sales tax by VAT. The principal and most attractive feature of the value added tax system is that in the tax payable by the dealer to the Government on his sales turnover he will get advantage of deduction of the entire tax paid by him to his vendor at the time of purchase. For example, if a dealer purchases goods for Rs. 10 lakh and pays his vendor a tax at 5% amounting to Rs.50,000/-; when he in his turn sells the same goods for Rs. 20 lakhs, he should pay tax at 5% which comes to Rs. 1,00,000/-. But in the case of VAT he gets a rebate of Rs.50,000/- which he has already paid at the time of purchase and pays only Rs. 50,000/- as tax and not Rs. 1,00,000/-. This advantage he will get only if he maintains the accounts properly and correctly. Therefore under VAT system it is to the advantage of the dealers to maintain accounts correctly one after the other in the chain from manufacturer to the consumer. The above adjustment makes it clear that what the VAT dealer pays as tax is on the difference between the purchase value of the goods and their sale value when he sells them. Such difference is called value addition which may consist of the costs of processing, packaging, transit incurred by the dealer between the date of purchase and the date of delivery of the goods he sold, the tax he paid to his vendor and his own profit margin. Hence this tax system has come to be called Value Added Tax System.Three categories of dealersUnder VAT there are three classes of dealers. Those dealers whose taxable turnover is less than Rs. 7.5 lakhs, and the dealer who deals exclusively in exempted goods are called exempted dealers. They need not get themselves registered nor pay any tax. Even where the turnover of the exempted dealer exceeds Rs. 1 crore he still continues to be exempted dealer, if he is dealing in exempted goods.The next group of dealers are called TOT dealers. The TOT dealer is a dealer whose turnover of all taxable goods exceeds Rs. 7.5 lakhs but does not exceed Rs. 50 lakhs (w.e.f. 20-4-2012). The rate at which the TOT dealer pays the tax is 1% flat rate. These dealers cannot claim the rebate of tax they pay to the dealers from whom they purchase their goods nor the tax they collected from their purchasers will be counted in the tax payable by the subsequent dealer or VAT dealer. The advantages the TOT dealers enjoy are: (1) they need not maintain the accounts separately for each class of goods for which different tax rates are prescribed under the Schedule; (2) easy quantification of their tax liability. It is in the interests of the TOT dealers that they should bring into account their turnover duly and properly so that they may have the advantage of being taxed at the concessional rate of 1%. The third category of dealers are called VAT dealers whose taxable turnover is above Rs. 50 lakhs (now T.O. limit increase, w.e.f. 20-4-2012). They constitute an important sector of the whole system. In order that this system works smoothly and without any complications, the Act deliberately did not provide any exemptions whatsoever in respect of any commodities or to any dealer or classes of dealers who come under the VAT net. The Act does not contain any provisions whereby the State Government can interfere with the working of the system. It is expected that VAT would operate as a computer by itself in accordance with the programme already set. Registration of the three categories of dealers - exempted dealers, TOT dealers and VAT dealers, the first of them need not get themselves registered, and they are unaffected by law. The second category of dealers must have been already registered under the existing Sales Tax Act. They might have been given their General Registration Number (GRN). All those dealers who were already registered under the existing Sales Tax Act and whose turnover is above Rs. 7.5 lakhs and upto Rs. 50 lakhs are deemed to have been registered as TOT dealers. In case, the turnover of these dealers exceeds Rs. 50 lakhs they should necessarily apply for registration as VAT dealers if they are not already classified as TOT dealers and given Tax Identification Number (TIN) by date of commencement of the Act. Those dealers who expect their turnover to exceed Rs. 50 lakhs in a year the last date of which falls in any month after 31st March, 2005 and all those dealers who start business after 31st March, 2005 and who estimate that their turnover in a year may exceed Rs. 50 lakhs shall apply for registration and get themselves registered as VAT dealers. The immediate consequence of registration as a VAT dealer is that he shall pay tax at 1%, 5% (w.e.f. 14-9-2011), 14.5% (w.e.f. 15-1-2010) or at special rates on the goods he sells and shall have the advantage of deducting the input tax they pay to the dealers from whom they purchase in the tax payable by them. A registration as a VAT dealer mandates that the dealers shall maintain the accounts in the manner prescribed and shall pay the tax in accordance with time schedule.
