The Bengal Alluvion and Alluvion Regulation, 1825Bengal Regulation 11 of 1825[Dated 26th May 1825]

1. Preamble.

- In consequence of the frequent changes which take place in the channel of the principal rivers that intersect the [territories] [Substituted by ALO for 'Provinces'.] immediately subject to the [Presidency of Fort William] [This includes the present State of Bihar.], and the shifting of the sands which lie in the beds of those rivers, chars or small islands are often thrown up by alluvion in the midst of the stream, or near one of the banks, and large portions of land are carried away by an encroachment of the river on one side, whilst accessions of land are at the same time, or in subsequent years, gained by dereliction of the water on the opposite side; similar instances of alluvion, encroachment and dereliction also sometimes occur on the sea-coast which borders the southern and south-eastern limits of Bengal. The lands gained from the rivers or sea by the means above mentioned are a frequent source of contention and affray, and although the law and custom of the country have established rule applicable to such cases, these rules not being generally known, the Court of Justice have sometimes found it difficult to determine the rights of litigant parties claiming chars or other lands gained in the manner above described. The Court of Sadar Dewani Adalat, with a view to ascertain the legal provisions of the Mohammadan and Hindu Laws on this subject, called for reports from their law officer of each persuasion, and on consideration of the reports furnished by the law officers in consequence, as well as of the decisions which have been passed by the Court of Sadar Dewani Adalat in cases brought before them in appeal which involved the rights of claimants to lands gained by alluvion or by dereliction of rivers or the sea, the Governor-General-in-Council has deemed it proper to enact the following rules for the general information of individuals as well as for the guidance of the Court of Judicature, to be in force, as soon as promulgated, throughout the whole of the [territories] [Substituted by ALO for 'Provinces'.] subject to the [Presidency of Fort William] [This includes the present State of Bihar.]:

2. Claims and disputes as to alluvial lands to be decided by usage when clearly recognised and established.

- Whenever any clear and definite usage of sikast paiwast respecting the disjunction and junction of land by the encroachment or recess of a river may have been immemorially established, for determining the rights of the proprietors of two or more contiguous estates, divided by a river (such as that the main channel of the river dividing the estates shall be the constant boundary between them, whatever changes may take place in the course of the river, by encroachment on one side and a accession on the other), the usage so established shall govern the decision of all claims and disputes relative to alluvial land between the parties whose estates may be liable to such usage.

3. Where no usage established, claims how decided.

- Where there may be no local usage of the nature referred to in the preceding section, the general rules declared in the following section shall be applied to the determination of all claims and disputes related to lands gained by alluvion or by dereliction either of a river or the sea.

4. Lands gained by gradual accession from recess of river or sea.

- [First.] [For saving of rights of under-tenants in alluvial land under this clause see, Act 31 of 1858, Section 2.] - When land may be gained by gradual accession, whether from the recess of a river or of the sea, it shall be considered an increment to the tenure of the person to whose land or estate it is thus annexed, whether such land or estate be held immediately from [the Government] [Substituted by Adaptation of Laws Order for 'the Crown'.] by a zamindari or other superior landholder, or as a subordinate tenure by any description of under-tenant whatever. Extent of interest in increment of person in possession. - Provided that the increment of land thus obtained shall not entitle the person in possession of the estate or tenure to which the land may be annexed to a right of property or permanent interest therein beyond that possessed by him in the estate or tenure to which the land may be annexed, and shall not in any case be understood to exempt the holder of it from the payment to [the Government] [Substituted by Adaptation of Laws Order for 'the Crown'.] of any assessment for the public revenue to which it may be liable under the provisions of [Regulation 2, 1819,] [The Bengal Land Revenue Assessment (Resumed Lands) Regulation, 1819.] or of any other Regulation in force. [Nor, if annexed to a subordinate tenure held under a superior landholder, shall the under-tenant, whether a khudkashi raiyat, holding a morusi istimrari tenure at a fixed rate of rent per bigha, or any other description of under-tenant liable by his engagements, or by established usage, to an increase of rent for the land annexed to his tenure by alluvion, be considered exempt from the payment of any increase of rent to which he may be justly liable.] [This paragraph of Section 4 clause First, is replied by Section 2 (1) of Act 8 of 1885.] Second-When river by sudden change of course Intersects estate. - The above rule shall not be considered applicable to cases in which a river, by a sudden change of its course, may break through and intersect an estate, without any gradual encroachment, or may by the violence of stream separate a considerable piece of land from one estate and join it to another estate, without destroying the identity and preventing the recognition of the land so removed. In such cases the land, on being clearly recognized, shall remain the property of its original owner. Third-Chars thrown up in navigable river. - When a char or island [may be thrown up in a large navigable river (the bed of which is not the property of an individual), or in the sea, and the channel of the river or sea between such island, and the shore may not be fordable, it shall according to established usage, be at the disposal of [the Government] [The revenue authorities are to take immediate possession of such islands, and to assess and settle the land-see Act 4 of 1868.], Property therein when channel fordable. - But if the channel between such island and the shore be fordable at any season of the year, it shall be considered an accession to the land tenure or tenures of the person or persons whose estate or estates may be most contiguous to it, subject to the several provisions specified in the first clause of this section with respect to increment of land by gradual accession. Fourth-Chars, etc. thrown up in small and shallow rivers. - In small and shallow rivers, the beds of which, with the Jalkar, right of fishery, may have been heretofore, recognized as the property of individuals, any sand-bank or char that may be thrown up shall, as hitherto, belong to the proprietor of the bed of the river, subject to the provisions stated in the first clause of the present section. Fifth-Dispute relative to lands gained by alluvion or by dereliction not provided for by Regulation. - In all other cases, namely, in all cases of claims and disputes respecting land gained by alluvion or by dereliction of a river or the sea, which are not specifically provided for by the rules contained in this Regulation the Courts of Justice in deciding upon such claims and disputes, shall be guided by the best evidence they may be able to obtain of established local usage, if there be any applicable to the case or, if not, by general principles of equity and justice.

5. Encroachments on beds of navigable rivers and other obstructions.

-Nothing in this Regulations shall be construed to justify any encroachments by individuals on the beds or channels of navigable rivers, or to prevent Zila [* * *] [Omitted by Act 1 of 1903.] Magistrates or any other officers of [the Government] [Substituted by Adaptation of Laws Order, for 'the Crown'.] who may be duly empowered for that purpose from removing obstacles which appear to interfere with the safe and customary navigation of such rivers, or which shall in any respects obstruct the passage of boats by tracking on the banks of such rivers, or otherwise.
