The Delimitation Act, 2002(33 of 2002)Last Updated 30th December, 2019 [7/422]Statement of Objects and Reasons. - Articles 82 and 170 of the Constitution, as amended by the Constitution (Eighty-fourth Amendment) Act, 2001 provides for readjustment and the division of each State into territorial constituencies (Parliamentary constituencies and Assembly constituencies) on the basis of the census figures for the Year 1991 by such authority and in such manner as Parliament may, by law, determine. Further, Articles 330 and 332 of the Constitution, as amended by the said Act provide for refixing the number of seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes in the House of the People and Legislative Assemblies of the States on the basis of the population ascertained at the census of the Year 1991.² The present delimitation of Parliamentary and Assembly constituencies is based on the population figures for the 1971 census. The uneven growth of population in different constituencies in different parts of the country as well as within the same State as also continuous migration of people/ electorate from one place to other especially from rural areas to urban areas have resulted in strikingly differing sizes of electoral constituencies even within the same State. The object of the Bill is to set up a Delimitation Commission for the purpose of effecting delimitation on the basis of the population as ascertained at the census of 1991 so as to correct the aforesaid distortion in the sizes of electoral constituencies. The proposed Delimitation Commission would also refix the number of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes on the basis of the 1991 census, without affecting total number of seats based on the census of 1971.³ The Bill seeks to lay down certain guidelines as to the manner in which such delimitation will be undertaken. In the Bill, the new Delimitation Commission has been given the task of carrying out delimitation of Parliamentary and Assembly constituencies. It has been specifically provided that the Delimitation Commission shall endeavour to complete the work within a period of two years. The proposed delimitation will apply to every general election to the House of the People or to a State Legislative Assembly held after the final orders of the Commission are published and to every bye-election arising from such general election. The other provisions of the Bill are generally on the pattern of the provisions contained in the Delimitation Act, 1972. Amendment Act 3 of 2004-Statement of Objects and Reasons. - Pursuant to enactment of the Constitution (Eighty-fourth Amendment) Act, 2001, the Delimitation Act, 2002 was enacted to constitute the Delimitation Commission for giving effect to the aforesaid constitutional amendment. The Delimitation Commission was accordingly constituted on 12-7-2002 with Shri Justice Kuldeep Singh, a retired Judge of the Supreme Court as its Chairperson and Shri B.B. Tandon, Election Commissioner in the Election Commission of India, and the State Election Commissioner as its ex officio members. The main task of the Commission was to readjust the territorial constituencies of the seats in the House of the People allocated to each State and the readjustment of the territorial constituencies of the total number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of each State and also to re-fix the number of seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes on the basis of 1991 census. In the budget session, 2003 of Parliament, the Constitution (Eighty-seventh Amendment) Act, 2003, was enacted to provide for readjustment of electoral constituencies, including those reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, based on the population census for the year 2001, without affecting the number of seats allocated to States in the Legislative bodies.² Since the Delimitation Act, 2002 as originally enacted provided for delimitation of electoral constituencies on the basis of 1991 census, to give effect to the Constitution (Eighty-seventh Amendment) Act, 2003, consequential amendments in the Delimitation Act, 2002 are required to be made. In this context, it may also be stated that Members of Parliament during the consideration of the aforesaid constitutional amendment have expressed the view that the delimitation on the basis of 2001 census should be completed as soon as possible. The Delimitation Commission has also pointed out that the Constitution does not envisage of office of State Election Commissioner in the case of States of Meghalaya, Mizoram and Nagaland. It has, therefore, suggested that in case of these three States, provision for appointment of nominee of the Governor instead of the State Election Commissioner, may also be provided by amending the Delimitation Act, 2002.³ In view of the above considerations and to facilitate continuation of delimitation exercise on the basis of 2001 census as soon as final figures of the 2001 census are published the Delimitation (Amendment) Ordinance, 2003 (Ord. 6 of 2003) was promulgated on 31-10-2003. The said Ordinance amends the Delimitation Act, 2002 to provide for-(i) delimitation of assembly and parliamentary constituencies on the basis of 2001 census; and(ii) inclusion of nominees of the Governor of the States of Meghalaya, Mizoram and Nagaland (where no State Election Commissioner exists) in the composition of the Delimitation Commission.[3rd June, 2002]An Act to provide for the readjustment of the allocation of seats in the House of the People to the States, the total number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of each State, the division of each State and each Union territory having a Legislative Assembly into territorial constituencies for elections to the House of the People and Legislative Assemblies of the States and Union territories and for matters connected therewith.
